

Welcome to the Exiles second home game of the 2002 season, and our sixth game overall. We are currently 7th in the table, but a win today against last years relegation victims, the Essex Spartans, will put us right back in the playoff hunt.

We have not had the start to the season we would have liked, despite some much improved performances from last year as a team, and individually, but it is worth noting that the three games we have lost were against the current top three teams in the division.

You may have also noticed us in the local press recently, after lengthy negotiations we have managed to get the News Shopper to run our match reports and news regularly in the local issue, the paper has a circulation of around ½ million homes in the area, so it is a very good result for us going forward, and so far the reports have been fabulous with some great colour photos of the game, so look out for them! On a final note, if any of you avid readers want to give us a hand during the games, we would love you to join our chain gang, not only do you receive our undying gratitude, but you'll get the best view of the game, and hear all the game talk in the players area! Something that's well worth doing, just speak to any of the players who will all point you in the right direction. (You'll also have the pleasure of Statts company all game!).

Our divisional table stands like this at the moment –
