American Football – The Basics

Object of the Game

- The object of the game is to outscore your opponent by advancing the football into their endzone for as many touchdowns as possible while holding them to as few as possible. There are other ways of scoring, but a touchdown is the prime objective.

- Another way for a team to score is by kicking a field goal. This is when they kick the football between the upright bars of the goal post in the opponent's endzone. A field goal is worth three points.
- A team can also pick up two points by tackling an opponent possessing the ball in their own end zone. This is called a safety!

The Basics of a Football Team

- Each team is allowed 11 men on the field at a time.
- Unlimited substitution is permitted, but players may only enter the field when the ball is not in play.
- If team A has possession of the ball, they use their offensive team to attempt to advance the ball toward the opponents endzone.
- If team B has the ball, team A will use their defensive team to attempt to stop team B from advancing the ball.
- If a kicking play is expected, both teams will use their special teams.

Methods of Scoring

- The biggest goal for an offense, is to score a touchdown. To score a touchdown, a player must carry the ball across the opposition's goal line, or catch a pass in the end zone. A touchdown is worth six points.
- The team scoring a touchdown is given the bonus of trying to add one or two more points. These are called extra point conversion attempts. One point is awarded for a kicked conversion, and two points for a run or passed conversion.

Understanding Down and Distance

- Understanding down and distance is probably the biggest key to understanding football.
- Basically, a down is a play. From the time the ball is snapped (put into play), to the time the play is whistled over by the officials, is considered one down.
- A team's offense is given four downs (plays) to move ten yards toward the opponent's end zone.
- Distance is the number of yards a team needs to get a new set of four downs.
- If they make the ten yards needed within four downs, they are given a new set of downs. This is called getting a first down.
- If they don't make it the required ten yards, the other team's offense takes possession of the ball.
- The offence can also decide to kick the ball away on fourth down to avoid giving the ball to their opponents in good position, this is called a 'punt'. The opponents then take over where the punt is fielded.

After a Score

- After a team scores via a touchdown or field goal, they must, in turn, kick off to the other team, and the process begins all over again.
